LITTLE ROAR

An eight-page story-making adventure for shared play.

STORY STUDIO

AGES 4-8 + A GROWN-UP

1 PICK A HERO

A tiny lion, a robot or a cloud?

2 MAKE A MIX-UP

Give your hero a small problem.

3 FIND A KIND FIX

Tell, draw or act the ending.

YOU ALREADY HAVE WHAT YOU NEED

A pencil or crayon, these pages and your imagination. Point instead of writing, or tell the story together. No cutting or special supplies needed.

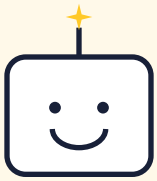

MEET YOUR HERO

Point to one, circle one, or invent someone completely new.

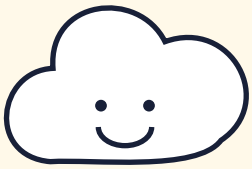

TINY LION

A small explorer with a gentle roar.

HELPFUL ROBOT

A maker who tries again when things wobble.

CURIOUS CLOUD

A daydreamer who notices surprising shapes.

DRAW YOUR HERO HERE

What makes your hero special?

A funny sound?

A useful idea?

A kind habit?

Tell it: "My hero is a _____ who loves to _____."

GIVE THEM A WISH

Choose a place and one thing your hero wants to do.

WHERE?

1

CUSHION CASTLE

A pretend castle made of soft shapes.

2

MOON GARDEN

A make-believe garden of silver leaves.

3

RAINBOW STATION

A colorful stop for imaginary travelers.

WHAT DO THEY WANT?

1

MAKE A FRIEND

Invite someone to share an adventure.

2

TELL A STORY

Find an audience for a surprising tale.

3

BUILD A PARADE

Make a pretend parade full of funny sounds.

START: In the _____, my hero wanted to _____.

ADD A SMALL MIX-UP

A story gets interesting when something needs a little thought.

1

TOO QUIET

The hero tries a roar, but only a tiny squeak comes out.

2

A SILLY MESSAGE

A note says "bring a spoon" when everyone expected a tune.

3

WRONG SHAPE

The parade sign is a triangle, but the holder is round.

HOW DOES YOUR HERO FEEL?

Surprised Confused Shy Curious Something else

There is no wrong feeling. Choose one, or show it with a gentle face.

TRY A KIND FIX

Pick an idea. Then decide how it solves your hero's mix-up.

1

ASK A FRIEND

Someone can listen, offer a clue or help make a new plan.

2

CHANGE THE PLAN

A squeaky roar can become a funny song. What could you change?

3

MAKE SOMETHING

Draw a new sign, write a clearer note or invent your own kind fix.

AN ENDING THAT BELONGS TO YOU

"So my hero tried _____. In the end, _____." You can choose a different ending each time.

YOUR THREE-PART STORY

Draw in the boxes, tell each part aloud, or ask someone to write your words.

START

Who is here?
What do they want?

MIX-UP

What happens?
How do they feel?

KIND FIX

What do they try?
How does it end?

A whole story can be three pictures, three sentences or three little scenes.

TELL IT A NEW WAY

Keep the same hero. Change just one thing and see what happens.

1

A NEW SOUND

Tell the story with a squeak, a whisper or a pretend animal sound.

2

A NEW HELPER

What if a cloud, a robot or another invented friend helps?

3

A NEW PLACE

Move the adventure to a tiny library or a floating garden.

4

A NEW ENDING

Give the hero a different kind solution. What changes?

TRY A LITTLE ROAR

Make gentle pretend paws like Rania, or choose any small gesture that feels comfortable. You can sit, stay still, point or simply imagine it.

Your story does not need to be filmed or shared online.

FOR THE GROWN-UP

A complete activity with room for every kind of storyteller.

SET UP

Print in Letter or A4 at actual size, or use fit-to-page if your printer needs wider margins. Pages 2-8 use mostly outlines to reduce ink. Offer a pencil or crayons. No cutting is needed.

FOLLOW THE STORY

Use pages 2-5 to choose a hero, a wish, a mix-up and a kind fix. Page 6 brings the story together. Page 7 helps you replay it with one change.

MAKE IT FIT

For a younger storyteller, read two choices and let them point. For a confident reader, invite their own choices. Draw, speak, gesture, dictate or imagine; writing is optional.

ONE POSSIBLE STORY

A tiny lion at the rainbow station wanted to tell a story. Its roar came out as a squeak. A friend listened, and together they turned the tale into a squeaky song. This is an example, not an answer to copy.

FINISH WITH A QUESTION

Ask: "Which part would you tell again?" Keep the page, change the ending, or begin a new story. No score, timer, account or public upload is needed.
